

EYFS Newsletter

Week Ending 15.11.19

Welcome to this week's joint newsletter for Reception and Little Bells. I have had the pleasure of teaching in both classes this week and Reception class have blown my socks off! During carpet time the children have sat amazingly well, shown super listening and they have done lots of fabulous learning.

In maths this week we have looked at the number 8, we have looked at number formation, number bonds to 8 and looked for numerals in the environment.

Welly Walk Wednesday was windy this week, but the children braved the cold weather and practiced letter formation with chinks on the playground. Pictures are on the Little Bells Facebook page. It does get extremely cold at Belthorn so please send your child with a warm coat, gloves, scarf and a hat. If you could remember to write their name in all the items that would be marvellous.

We have talked about Anti-Bullying week and some children came to school in odd socks on Tuesday to celebrate that everyone is different, and it is good to be different. The children talked about what they do to be kind and how it makes them feel when someone is kind to them.

Wow the children all looked super bright and spotty this week for Children in Need. The children took part in a quiz during the morning session and we had a teddy bears picnic in the afternoon and the children all made their own sandwich following a set of instructions, which was a little tricky but they persevered and all succeeded. Well done to all the children.

Mrs Sutcliff has not been in for a few days but we all hope she gets well soon and will hopefully be back next week.

Have a lovely weekend,

Mrs Drugan and the EYFS team.
