

Little Bells Newsletter

Week Ending 25th June 21

This week we have been looking at different types of transport, from cars to hot air balloons. We have been reading stories, watching clips, participating in quizzes and painting our favourite types of transport and even managed to turn our outdoor area into a car park, free of charge of course!

After a few weeks of learning about different cultural events, we are back to our Fascinating Fridays. This week the children have been growing rainbows. A simple but very effective technique, using kitchen roll, felt tips and water. I love watching the children's faces in these experiments, full of fascination and wonder; it's magical.

Over the last few weeks the children have run their little socks off in our sports day practise sessions. They have learnt some new skills with the three legged race and the egg and spoon/Jersey new potato - only the best for Little Bells! and the sack race. Myself, Mrs Potter and Miss Clemson have been blown away by the children, they have been amazing! We haven't stopped laughing and neither have the children, so much so, some of them haven't even been able to run. It has definitely been one of my highlights this year. I hope you enjoyed some of the pictures posted on our Facebook page. As you can appreciate we are unable to have parents come and watch due to the restrictions but I will post as many pictures possible of the day. Tuesday 29th is our sports day and to coincide with the Euros each year group has been selected a country to represent. Little Bells are Belgium, so if your child has a red t-shirt they can wear it on the day.

As promised an up-date on our wow event. This will be going ahead on the morning of Wednesday 30th. Usually these events would include Reception class, however to keep to our social distance bubbles, both classes will be holding their event separately. If your child has a small case or backpack and would like to bring it in on the day to make our check-in feel a little more realistic, that would be great. No dress up required, come in Little Bells uniform!

Look out for next week's newsletter as I will be giving you a few dates for your diary.

Have a wonderful weekend,

Mrs Hall
